

STORY OF A COUNTY BOY WAS A MEMBER OF COLLEGE CO. OF EMERGENCY REGT.

And Became The Husband Of One
Of the Wealthiest Women Of America.

Luther A. Swope, an Adams County boy, died at his home in New York City on Friday, February 15th, and that life covered a period of seventy-five years, running from an average beginning of a boy in this county until he was helping to care for one of the greatest fortunes in New York. He was born in Littlestown and in 1863 entered Gettysburg College and remained here until the end of his junior year in 1867. He was a member of Company A, of the 26th Pa. Regt. militia, better known as the "Emergency Regiment." Company A was formed from Gettysburg College boys, Luther A. Swope being one of the boys, and organized on June 17, was ready for the march June 24, and on June 26th moved out the Chambersburg pike, engaged the advance of Early's corps and were compelled after a brief skirmish to retreat in haste to escape capture by the Confederates on their way to York. They served an emergency call and purpose during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania and Company A is a most interesting part of the history of Gettysburg College.

Mr. Swope left college in his junior year in 1867 to attend Muhlenberg, where he graduated in 1868. He then became a tutor in the homes of wealthy families in New York and taught for some years at Sing Sing, N. Y. He was an extensive traveler. He might be distinguished as an Adams County boy who won for his wife one of the wealthiest women in this country. She came of one of the oldest families of Manhattan, the Wendel, whose real estate holdings in New York City are alone exceeded by the Astors. The Wendel family dates back more than 200 years and a characteristic of the family was to buy but never sell real estate, a sign being hung in the door of the Wendel office declaring, "We do not sell property." John G. Wendel, father of the present family, died many years ago and at his death had an estate estimated then at sixty million dollars, which was left to a son and four daughters. The only one in the family to marry was Miss Rebecca Wendel, to Luther A. Swope, and the family fortune has passed to the survivors until today the vastly increased fortune is held by two Mrs. Swope and a maiden sister.

Luther A. Swope, besides his widow, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. G. A. Shirk, of Hanover, and Mrs. Jonas Spangler, of Hagerstown.

Mrs. Frances Walter died at her home in Baltimore on Tuesday. She was the daughter of the late Captain Hall, of Baltimore and a niece of the Misses Crawford, who lived in Gettysburg for many years and with whom Mrs. Walter made her home. Mrs. Walter had one daughter, Miss Coruelia Walter, who died several years ago. Mrs. Walter's memory will be cherished by many Gettysburg people by reason of the good work she did here as the organizer and manager of the Band of Hope. Many of our young people while children received from her an inspiration on the temperance subject, which was added to greatly by the charm of her personality. For years the Band of Hope was a weekly event in the lives of many children of the town, now grown.

Edward B. Blocher, a life-long resident of Bendersville, Adams county, and veteran of the Civil War, died on Sunday at the age of 90 years, two months and eight days. Mr. Blocher was well known throughout Adams county, and during his life as a carpenter and contractor has constructed many of the houses and churches in the county. Besides his wife, Mr. Blocher is survived by 10 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren. Also by a brother, James Blocher, of Bendersville. He was a son of the late James and Mary Blocher. During the Civil War he served in Company C, 138th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. Funeral was on Thursday, with services by Rev. J. A. Farrar and interment at Bendersville.

Bowersox, and interment in the cemetery adjoining the Hampton Church.

Burial was made at Oklahoma City, Tuesday. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, also the following sisters: Mrs. John Stock, of New Oxford; Mrs. W. E. Jacobs, of York Springs; Mrs. William Brough and Mrs. Ellsworth Reichwine, of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Sidney Wierman Longenecker, widow of Joseph Longenecker, died Saturday at the home of her niece, Mrs. George Weidner, near Aspers, aged 89 years, 5 months and 1 day. Wierman, of Centre Mills; Mrs. Howard Hutton, of Chambersburg; Mrs. William H. Reid, of Bendersville; A. M. Wierman, of Bendersville; Mrs. Charles Yimgst, of Gardners. George L. Danner died suddenly at a hotel in Reno, Nevada, where he had been living for some time. Death was due to paralysis. Mr. Danner was a son of the late Jonas and Polly Leib Danner and was born in Astoria, Illinois. When very young the family moved to East Berlin, Adams county, where his early life was spent. On becoming of age, Mr. Danner returned to Illinois, and later went to Nevada, where the remainder of his life was spent. He made an extended visit to his childhood home in East Berlin a number of years ago, and in 1922 spent nine months with Mrs. C. S. B. Walter, of Hanover. He was unmarried and leaves one brother, John Danner, of Astoria, Illinois; two sisters, Mrs. Edward Kauffman, of Emigsville, and Mrs. S. C. B. Walter, of Hanover, formerly of East Berlin. The body was taken to Hanover and funeral services held on Friday, by Rev. R. H. Bergstresser, and interment in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Hanover.

John W. Wetzel, the oldest practitioner at the Cumberland County bar, died on last Sunday in his 73rd year. He had enjoyed a long and active career in public life. He was the son of the late George Wetzel, of Carlisle. He attended Dickinson College, graduating in the class of 1874 and was admitted to the bar the same year. In politics he was a Democrat. In 1880 he was elected district attorney of Cumberland county and later was a candidate for county judge. He leaves a wife and one son, G. Frank Wetzel, of Yonkers, N. Y.

Frank Shade, for many years hostler for Dr. H. M. Hartman, Gettysburg, was buried at Mt. Holly Springs on Monday. Mr. Shade's death occurred Saturday at the county home.

Pearl Mabel Clapsaddle, young daughter of Wilbur and Helen Snyder Clapsaddle, of Hanover, died Monday from pneumonia, aged 1 year, seven months and 27 days. Funeral on Wednesday, with services by Rev. F. S. Brimer, and interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Hanover.

Congressman Samuel F. Gladfelter on Monday made appointments for West Point and Annapolis.

The nominee for the United States Military Academy at West Point is James C. McClymont, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James McClymont, of York. The appointee is at present in Harrisburg. The first alternate is Charles Michael Spangler, an all-around athlete at the York High School, and the second alternate is Roswell R. Boyer, of Hanover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Boyer. The examination for the candidates will be held March 4.

The nominee for Annapolis is Morton S. Nauss, of Wrightsville. The first alternate is George Gitt Ehrhart, of Hanover, and the second alternate is Richard H. Dietz, of Gettysburg. The successful candidate must pass physical and mental examinations to enter the academy in June.

Borough Has Truck.

Gettysburg Borough has purchased a one-ton Ford truck to replace the horse and cart and it was initiated last Saturday by being operated with Town Father Jesse Snyder in the driver's cab. His job is not a permanent one, just a presiding ex-officio at a new way of doing old things. Keep the town clean.

High School Scholarship Contest.

More than 75,000 pupils of the High Schools of Pennsylvania, Delaware and Southern New Jersey are busily engaged in preparing orations on questions having to do with the Constitution of the United States, its makers and defenders.

All of the boys and girls hope to qualify as contestants in a series of contests to be conducted in the schools to find the best orator in this region, who will receive a four year scholarship in the University of his own choosing and be named as one of seven contestants who will meet in a national contest in June, to be held in Washington, at which time the President of the United States will make an address and Justices of the Supreme Court will determine who will receive a cash prize of $3,500. The second best oration will be awarded $1,000 and the third $500.

The same interest which is displayed by schools in the Philadelphia region is being manifested in all parts of the country, so that in all probability more students are studying the Constitution of the United States today than at any other time in the history of the country, and are contributing toward the success of the biggest competitive High School event ever attempted.

New entries are coming daily to the Committee, 324 Bulletin Building, Philadelphia, and according to estimates made by Burton L. Smith, Secretary in charge of the work, the quota in this region may reach 100,000 before the elimination contest starts the first week in April.

Gettysburg High School should get in this contest.

Old Age Pensions.

The Adams County Old Age Assistance Board will hold their first regular meeting Monday evening, March 3rd. The members of the board are Hiram Lady, of Arendtsville; H. E. Topper, of McSherrystown, and Mrs. Wm. Arch McClean, and under the act they serve without pay. At the organization meeting of the Board appointed C. E. Tawney, secretary of the Board, to serve without pay. The forms for the applicants are furnished by the State and have been received by the Secretary, who is giving them out as they are called for. The applicants can fill them out themselves and when completed be sworn to them and return them to the Secretary. There is no necessity whatever for any haste in the matter. The State has no money for these pensions yet. A new legislature must be elected at the fall election of 1924 and this legislature must make the appropriation for these pensions and appropriation bills are the last things pushed through a legislature. Such bills will not be passed before the summer of 1925. The State will want to know by the time the next Legislature meets in January, 1925, how much money it will take to pay these pensions, so that the applicants have plenty of time in which to fill out and execute blanks, any time within the next ten months.

WEDDINGS IN THE VALLEY

FATHER WHALEN TELLS OF TWO IN THE OLD VALLEY.

No Part of the Attending Circumstances Is Missed In His Telling.

Sollenberger — Clapsaddle. — Love hath all season for his very own. In spite of the fact that Buchanan Valley is snow-bound, with treacherous neck-breaking ice on every road and footpath, the Old Jesuit Mission has had two marriages within the past week. First, on Saturday morning, February 16th, lovely Brunehilda Clapsaddle was led to the altar by Warriener Sollenberger, of the Piney Mt. Inn. They were attended by the groom's sister and the bride's brother, Miss Edna Sollenberger and Frank Clapsaddle. Mrs. Flowers, of Harrisburg, was the matron of honor. The young couple spent part of their honeymoon sightseeing on Washington, D. C. They will make their permanent home at the Piney Mt. Inn.

Gibson—Knoose. — Then at the romantic hour of 10 last Saturday night, Ralph Gibson, of Carlisle, wedded Cora Knoose, one of the old Valley's fairest daughters. The marriage was delayed because the groom immediately preceding the ceremony suffered three bad falls on the ice. Perhaps he was delicious with happiness! When he alighted from his auto, he got his first skid. Hiking the way up the mountain to the church, he got two more. The way of an electric-lighted city boy in the starlit Blue Ridge mountains is hard sledding. But Ralph kept grimly on. A bumped head hasn't much effect on a madly beating heart.

The Gibson-Knoose marriage was witnessed by the father of the bride, Frank Knoose and her sister, Miss Lena, while Mrs. Alice Whalen, mother of Father Will Whalen, was matron of honor. Father Whalen, pastor of the Old Jesuit Mission, performed both marriages. The Gibsons will take up housekeeping in Carlisle.

Shoemaker—Bair. — Miss Anna Mae Bair, of Silver Run, and Lester Clinton Shoemaker, of Littlestown, were united in marriage Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Lutheran parsonage, Silver Run, by the bride's pastor, Rev. A. G. Wolf. The bride is a daughter of the late Thomas Bair, of Westminster. For the past eleven years she has resided at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dutterer, near Silver Run. The bridegroom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Shoemaker, of near Littlestown. In the spring the young couple will assume charge of the farm now occupied by the bridegroom's father.

Loss—Eltz. — Miss Mary A. Eltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Eltz, of McSherrystown, and Harry L. Loss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loss, of Hanover, motored to Westminster and were married at the rectory of St. John's Catholic Church, that place, last Saturday evening. Rev. Martin P. Egan performed the ceremony. The bridegroom was graduated in the commercial department from the Hanover High School in 1922.

Hartlaub—Spangler. — John H. Hartlaub, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hartlaub, of Square Corner, and Miss Pauline Spangler, of Littlestown, were married on January 26th, and on last Saturday evening were given a reception at the home of the bridegroom. The bride is a graduate of the Littlestown High School and has taught in the public schools for several terms. The bridegroom is in the poultry business with his father at Square Corner, where they have a poultry farm. Mr. and Mrs. Hartlaub will reside at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Smith—Hoff. — Miss Bertha M. Hoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoff, and Ligouri A. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smith, both residing near Square Corner, this county, were married Tuesday morning in Conewago Chapel. A nuptial high mass was celebrated by Rev. Dr. Charles Koch. The attendants were the bridegroom's brother, Lewis Smith, and Miss Gertrude Weaver. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, following which they left on a wedding trip.

Cratin—Krichen. — Richard Cratin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cratin, of Littlestown, and Miss Evelyn Krichen, daughter of Charles Krichen, of Baltimore, who resided with her grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Krichen, of McSherrystown, were married Tuesday, in St. Mary's rectory, by Rev. Dr. L. Aug. Reuter. They were attended by Clarence Krichen and Miss Violet Ackerman. They will reside with the bride's grandmother.

Kibble—Brindle. — Miss Etta Grace Brindle, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Brindle, of Franklin Grove, Ill., and Verdetta Kibble, of the same place, were recently united in marriage. Miss Brindle and her parents were residents of Gettysburg until about a year ago, when they moved to Franklin Grove. Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Kibble will take up their residence on a farm near Franklin Grove.

Walter—Taylor. — The wedding of Miss Marie M. Taylor and Martin T. Walter, both of near Biglerville, took place on Wednesday evening, February 27th, in the parsonage of the Lutheran church, Arendtsville. Ceremony by Rev. G. B. Ely. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira P. Taylor, of Biglerville R. R. No. 2, and the groom is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walter, of Biglerville R. R. No. 2. Immediately after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Walter left for a honeymoon trip to Washington, Annapolis and Richmond. Upon their return they will make their home on the farm of Mr. Walter's father.

Housewarming Of New Club Rooms.

On Tuesday evening a housewarming of the new club rooms took place in St. Francis Xavier Hall for Father Corby Council and Queen of Peace Council of the Pennsylvania Catholic Beneficial League. The basement of the hall has been remodeled to provide club rooms and meeting places for the two councils and other church societies.

The meeting was presided over by Charles E. Swisher, president of the Father Corby Council and Peter C. Stock was master of ceremonies. An address was made by Patrick A. Kennedy, Esq., of Harrisburg, on "Americanism." Mr. Kennedy is Past State Deputy Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus. There were short talks by President Swisher, P. C. Stock, C. W. Stock, grand secretary of the P. C. B. L., Rev. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier Church, and Edgar P. Hamilton.

A delightful buffet lunch was served by Miss Mary Ramer. Mrs. Anna Swisher, Mrs. Emma Stallsmith, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Miss Evelyn Hall, Miss Rose Topper, Mrs. Fred Faber, Mrs. Charles Jacobs, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Miss Virginia Steinberger, Mrs. Edgar P. Hamilton and Miss Marie Redding, all members of Queen of Peace Council.

Out of town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Henry H. Reuer, Miss Kennedy and Simon Stock, of Harrisburg, and John A. Coonan, of Lancaster.

The matter of the establishment in the near future of a branch Council of the Knights of Columbus was discussed and favored.

Bell Telephone System in Pa.

A total of 163,780 telephones connected, which with 84,152 disconnections and 11,135 acquired by the purchase of the Pittsburgh & Allegheny Company leaves a net growth of 74,293 telephones in the state, was the outstanding accomplishment of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania during the year 1923, according to the report of its President, Leonard H. Kinnard, submitted to the Board of Directors in Philadelphia Tuesday.

The company spent $5,756,863 for land and buildings, and $13,714,191 for central office equipment during the year. There were 492 operators' positions added to switchboards. Outside of the central offices there were 466,965 miles of wire placed in service bringing the total amount of wire in the Bell System in Pennsylvania at the end of the year up to 2,826,029 miles.

Mr. Kinnard estimates that during the five years of 1924-1928 there will be a further gain of 440,000 telephones in this state. These increases, together with replacement requirements will necessitate the expenditure of approximately $173,000,000 for construction during that period.

Fund For Dollings Stockholders.

A. B. Geary, of Chester, Pa., has been appointed by the district court to distribute a balance in the hands of the receivers of the R. C. Dollings Company, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Geary fixed Friday, Feb. 29, in room 303, of the post-office building, at Philadelphia, for his first meeting. At an order of the court Mr. Geary sent out more than 5,000 postal cards with notice of the meeting and from the replies coming in it seems that victims of the concern are in every part of Pennsylvania and adjoining states. Some letters received set forth the most pitiful stories of children, widows and old persons who were induced to put their savings into the stock with a lure of high rate of interest. A fund of more than $150,000 awaits distribution and the receivers believe they will realize much more from real estate. It is expected that stockholders will receive about 25 per cent.

Gun Club Scores And Prizes.

The mid-winter tournament of the Gettysburg Rod and Gun Club was concluded last Friday with a tie for first place between Clarence Cromer and Lewis Bushman and on a flip of a coin first place went to Lewis Bushman.

AS WILSON LIVED, SO HE DIED.

TRUE TO HIS IDEALS.

An article appeared from the pen of David Lawrence, just prior to the passing away of Woodrow Wilson,

that is one of the remarkable tributes

to the man.

The hour of surrender—a word which, in his days of power, he never recognized—has come to Woodrow Wilson.

And with it there wells up simultaneously in the hearts of the people

everywhere a sadness born of admiration for the stoicism of a statesman who fought till the last for the ideals in which he believed.

"I would rather fail," he used to say, "in a cause that I know some day will triumph than to win in a cause that I knew some day will fail."

It was his philosophy of battle. To posterity he looked always for vic-tication. He never understood the word 'compromise.' Even in his breakdown, after the famous western trip,

when it seemed as if the Versailles

covenant of the League of Nations

was beaten in the Senate, he scorned defeat.

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who was in charge of the fight for the League of Nations

treachery, asked for an engagement.

"I suppose he is coming to talk compromise," commented Mr. Wilson

as he granted the engagement, but he listened without surrender.

All the world may say Woodrow Wilson should have compromised and that to-day he would have had America a member of the league with reservations. But to Woodrow Wilson

it was an enduring principle—he could not barter what he thought was fundamental to the peace of the world. And he looked on ever since, waiting patiently for the turn of the tide, a turn that years of agitation

may or may not bring, but at the hour of his passing from the stage of life America remains outside the league he worked so ardently to establish.

Never Wanted Pity.

Tragic may be the atmosphere, sorrow felt by his friends and foes alike

that he did not retain the physical vigor to continue his fight, praise for his courage—all this may be the comment of the outside world, but not a word of pity or pathos did the Wilsonian temperament want. His was the spirit of the crusader. His was the tenacity of soldier in a hand-to-hand fight. He never gave an inch.

For years he was ready for death. He went forth on his western trip against the advice of his physicians, but with a smile of disregard for life itself.

He used to say he would gladly give his life for the cause of the League of Nations. The remaining years of his life were meant to him only for the accomplishment of the greatest ideal of all—a world organization for peace.

Scarred by the war, racked in nerves, never forgetting the awful-ness of the combat in which he felt always a personal responsibility, he never could drive out of his mind the thoughts of the hundred thousand

American boys who died, as he thought, for an ideal and of the hundreds of thousands who came home

wounded and maimed in the service of the flag.

Held Firmly To Ideals

"To make the world safe for Democracy" was Mr. Wilson's war slogan.

To his critics it was an empty phrase.

But the idea of a war to end war never left Woodrow Wilson. Long after the American people began to turn their minds to domestic concerns and

the material things of reconstruction,

the broodings of Mr. Wilson over the breakdown of moral force continued.

He was arbitrary in his views about formula for world peace, because he was in no mood for detail or distrust

of other peoples or governments.

All had worked together in the common partnership of war. All had put their armies and navies under one

command and had given of their food and money and resources without stint for an ideal. The decision of 1917 meant to Woodrow Wilson a readiness on the part of America to assume obligations in the affairs of the world and to fulfil them. The recession from this viewpoint he could never understand. In his last speech to the American people over the radio

on Armistice Day, November, 1923,

Mr. Wilson was bitter in the denuci-ation of that policy. He called it

"cowardly" and ignoble. And his words were resented by many. To the sick man in seclusion in the National Capital it was but the last fee-

Convention Building

Madison Square Garden in N. Y. is already undergoing repairs in preparation for the Democratic National Convention in June.

Hoped For Vindication

And even on top of that Woodrow

Wilson hoped for vindication in 1924.

He watched the maneuvers of the candidates. None but James M. Cox has been mentioning the League of Nations, but the removal of Woodrow Wilson from the political stage will not mean that his party will forget.

William Gibbs McAdoo, son-in-law

of Woodrow Wilson, has publicly declared for the Bok peace plan, which provides for the entry of the United States into the League of Nations

with suitable reservations and proper safeguards on American sovereignty and independence. Mr. McAdoo may or may not be heir to the Wilson strength in the United States, but he has already indicated his willingness to take up the battle for the league.

Woodrow Wilson never sanctioned

his son-in-law's presidential ambitions. He never committed himself,

so far as anyone knew, to any man

for 1924, but he has been looking hopefully to the Democratic National Convention in June to adopt a platform which will keep alive the Wilsonian view of foreign policy.

Picture of Tragedy

Only a few weeks ago the members of the Democratic National Committee passed in silent procession before the ex-President at his home. His haggard face, his feeble body loosely

draping an armchair, his smile of recognition for his old friends—it made a picture of never-to-be-forgotten tragedy. But he would resent that word. It was but his farewell counsel to his party—he had never surrendered.

New Milk Regulations After May 31.

After May 31st there will be new regulations in force governing the production of milk in the Philadelphia

Milk Shed. It is expected that these will have a far reaching effect in improving the quality of milk offered for sale in the Philadelphia district.

Cleanliness in production and quality

in the product are the aims of the new regulations.

The regulations were adopted at the annual meeting of the Inter-State

Milk Producers' Association in December. They provide for improvements in dairy barns with special reference to the ceilings, floors and the cleanliness of the barns. Another section of the resolution requires

every farmer to have a milk house.

A suitable milk house is recognized as a necessity on every dairy farm.

There is further provision for the cleaning of the animals before each milking and for the cooling and handling of milk. For the sake of cleanliness, as well as to prevent loss from spilling and splashing, a small top pail is required.

The Quality Control Department of

the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy

Council, which has already done so much toward improving the quality of milk offered for sale in the Philadelphia Milk Shed, will enforce the regulations.

Before any milk can be sold under the new regulations, a permit is required by each producer who sells his milk to a dealer co-operating with the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association and the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy Council. Applications for permits have been sent out to all dairy farmers. Permits will be sent

those who reply to the applications in full. Temporary permits will be granted until the farm has been inspected by representatives of the Dairy Council. After that a permanent permit will be required.

Dairy farmers will have until May

31st, which is ample time to make the necessary improvements to meet the new regulations.

Dr. Wilmer Krusen of the Board of Health, Philadelphia, where 700,000

quarts of milk are sold every day,

when told of the plan of the Inter-

State Milk Producers' Association,

stated that this would do much toward improving the milk supply. He said the cleaning up must be at the source, the dairy farm. Dr. Clyde L.

King, secretary of the Commonwealth,

says, "The adoption of sanitary regulations will do much toward improving the markets for milk in the Philadelphia Milk Shed, and should be of great benefit to the dairy producer."

The dairy farmers who have the interests of the industry at heart will earnestly co-operate in meeting the regulations at every detail.

Builds New Strength

Watering Oysters Must Stop.

By a new law it is proposed to force the discontinuance of the practice of watering oysters. The succulent bivalves must be sold hereafter only in their solid state. Even the icing of oysters by putting the ice into them will be banned; the ice must be put around them in another container after the manner in which ice cream is packed.

The policy has the warrant of law, and because of the high price being charged for oysters, when the consumer buys oysters he should get what he pays for and not a lot of water. The aid of the courts will be invoked in the enforcement of the new regulation.

The new regulation, as far as Pennsylvania is concerned, is officially promulgated and reads as follows:

"Revised oyster ruling officially promulgated by the Bureau of Foods, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. On and after March 1, 1924, proceedings will be instituted in all cases where evidence is obtained that oysters are sold, offered for sale, or in possession with intent to sell, in the State of Pennsylvania, which have been adulterated by the addition of water; and in all cases a charge of adulteration will be made where oysters are found which upon examination show more than 10% of free liquor obtained by draining the oysters for a period of two minutes in a colander or other suitable utensil.

Littlestown Teacher Resigns.

Amos Collins, teacher in the Intermediate department of the Littlestown public school, resigned to accept a position with the Kroh Canning Company, at Silver Run. Mrs. Stanley M. Staub has been elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Collins.

The Daughters of the American Revolution gave their annual tea on February 22 from 5 to 9 P. M. at the Hoffman House. About 200 people were served tea and about $85 was cleared.

Learning Habits of Birds.

Through the work of the United States biological survey and its 490 co-operators, 6,000 birds were banded for identification during the last year, and thus valuable information about the migratory and other flight habits of the birds was obtained.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Gettysburg people. Profit by this Gettysburg resident's experience:

J. J. Eiker, prop. taxi business, 226 N. Stratton St., says: "When lying in bed, my back hurt badly and every time I made a turn, a sharp pain caught me. There was a constant soreness and pain in my back. My kidneys were inactive and I knew they were affected because the secretions were unnatural in color. I used Doan's Pills and they put my back in the best of shape and restored my kidneys to normal."

Circumstantial Evidence

By W. IRVING KING

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Charlotte Crawford was the daughter and only child of Squire Crawford, president of the local bank at Masonville. She was pretty enough to be the heroine of any story and just as sweet and good as she was pretty. Moreover she was in love with Addison Douglas, although she had known him only six months. It seemed to her, and it seemed to Addison, as if they had always known each other.

"Addison," said Charlotte one night, "I do wish you would trust me a little more. If you love me as you say you do, why will you not tell me why you came to Masonville. Of course, I know that you are not my cousin—father admitted that—but what is it that you are concealing from me?"

"Charlotte, dear," replied Addison, "for just a little while longer I must ask you to trust me. I can't tell you all just now."

"But you don't trust me," said Charlotte.

Addison sighed. "I can't explain," he said, "but will you trust me just a little longer?"

"Yes, dear," said Charlotte. "How can I help it?" And that little matter was settled for the time being.

We change the scene: It was a dark, rainy night as the "enforcement officers" waited impatiently for the boat which was to attempt to land a cargo of illicit "booze" at the end of the old road which led down to the long-deserted wharf.

"There she comes," said one of the officers and the sound of a motorboat was heard out on the black rain-swept water, approaching with all her lights out.

"We've got 'em," chuckled one of the watchers. But even as he spoke from neighboring headland a rocket shot up into the black sky and the sounds of the motorboat began to recede.

"They're on," cried the chief of the party: "we've been double-crossed. Into the launch, be lively." Into a launch which had lain hidden in a neighboring creek for just such an emergency, the men tumbled and the chase was on. Out into the bay and then up a long, narrow arm which penetrated far into the land they followed the rum-runner, steering by the sound of her engine—in the dense darkness and rain it was impossible to see the object of their pursuit.

Soon after entering the arm of the bay they lost the sound of the motorboat's engines. They stopped and listened intently. Several little creeks branched off between heavily wooded banks.

"I hear 'em!" cried the chief at last. "Here, give me that wheel." And up one of the dark, narrow waterways they sped. Presently close aboard, they made out the bulk of the rum-running boat. "Hands up, we've got you," cried the chief, as he and his men leaped ashore. But the only reply was the sound of a motor truck being madly driven away into the night. The rum runners had worked quickly in transferring their cargo and themselves. The motorboat was practically empty. So the rum-runners escaped and Addison Douglas was seen entering the house of the Widow Leeds, where he boarded, at five o'clock that morning with a heavy and suspicious-looking bundle under his arm.

Georgiana Macombe, who went out nursing and was returning from an all-night vigil, saw him.

When later in the day all Masonville was talking of the rum-running episode—curious how quickly such matters get abroad in seaside towns—Georgiana contributed to the general gossip her early morning discovery. Within an hour Addison had been convicted at the bar of public opinion as a rum-runner and a bootlegger.

He was a bright, handsome young man, but that did not help him. He had appeared in Masonville just after the counterfeiting gang had been rounded up at the old Phillips place, three miles away in the woods, and been introduced by Squire Crawford as his nephew come to a quiet place to recover his health. Though old Edith Holliman, who knew everybody and everything, declared that it was the "first" time he ever heard of the squire having a nephew, and as to health Addison "did not look as if he needed much doctoring."

Now all was explained. The only question was whether Squire Crawford had been imposed upon or had succumbed to the lure of the rum-runners' tremendous profits. Everybody knew that the Squire "did love money."

The Widow Leeds was "all of a flutter." The day before she had seen a telegram lying on Addison's table, and had, of course, read it. It was from New York and had said, "It will be tonight." Addison was still asleep upstairs when the widow heard the news. Out she went bursting with information.

Shortly before noon Addison appeared on the street boldly carrying the incriminating bundle which Georgiana had seen him with. His passage caused a sensation. A small crowd gathered behind him and saw him enter the bank and disappear into Squire Crawford's private office.

"Get it!" asked the squire.

"Yes," replied Addison. "Here it is." The squire took the bundle and locked it up in the safe. Then, chuck-ling with unholo gloe, he told Addison of the excitement in the village.

The young man laughed heartily, but suddenly becoming serious said, "By George! this won't do. I must go and explain to Charlotte. Those gossips will have been at her before this and the poor girl will be in a dicken's of a state. She promised to trust me. It is true, but I had better go right off and explain things."

"The circumstantial evidence is sure against us, squire."

And he hurried away to the Crawford home.

Georgiana and the Widow Leeds had been before him. And had been shown the door by Charlotte. But not before they had unburdened their minds.

"Oh, Addison," said Charlotte, "what does all this mean?" He saw that she had been crying.

"Charlotte, dear," he replied, "did you not say you would trust me?"

"Yes, and now that you are here, I do. But for a while they had so many things which pointed to—oh, Addison, for a while. Is it too soon to ask you to tell me all, dear?"

And he told her. When the counterfeiting gang had been captured, their plates had not. They were supposed to be hidden somewhere near Masonville. Addison, a government detective, had been sent down to keep watch of the locality while "Shifty" Lannigan, one of the captured counterfeitters, was worked upon to betray the hiding place of the plates. By means known to the secret service, that had been finally accomplished, and it was by a coincidence that the night upon which Pannigan had agreed to lead the detective to the hiding place had coincided with the night of the rum-running episode. Addison's apparently incriminating bundle contained the plates.

Charlotte and Addison were married and went to live in New York, where he now runs a private detective agency. The newspapers had a detailed account of the whole affair, but Georgiana and the Widow Leeds shook their heads and said, "You can't believe a thing you see in the newspapers nowadays."

"JUSTICE" AMONG THE ARABS

Complicated Proceedings Involving Punishment of Man Accused of Murdering His Aunt.

Over the open grave near the tomb of Sheikh Mansur, the patron saint of the village, the relatives of Miriam had sworn revenge in the words of the ancient formula: "You must sleep, but we must take revenge on the enemy. Your bed is sliken; sleep and fear not." But what should they do? According to immemorial Arab law it was their right and duty to attack the murderer and his clan, rob them at will and kill one able-bodied man from among their number. But this they did not dare to attempt; for Fat-meh and her son had a much larger following than they. They accused Khadir of throwing the fatal stone, but he denied his guilt and, instead of fleeing for refuge to a neutral sheik, he prepared, with the support of his relatives, to resist their attack. What could they do?

As they discussed their wrongs, their rage mounted. There was but one way to get revenge—to abandon their Arab customs and appeal to the hated Turkish authorities at Jerusalem. By liberal bakshish Ahmad, Miriam's son, got a detail of soldiers to descend on the village and carry Khadir away to prison. The trial was long drawn out and expensive to both sides through the payment of much bakshish. In the end Ahmad's bribes won the day and Khadir went to prison for seven years.

By common consent the matter rested until Khadir should be free. When war came, he was almost forgotten, until the English arrived and released him. What now was to be done? Khadir was still a murderer according to Arab law. The honor of his murdered aunt's family had not been vindicated. If the cousins were to live together in the same village, they must be reconciled according to Arab custom. The two persons most intimately concerned, Khadir and Ahmad, must meet and agree upon a mutually acceptable sum to be paid by Khadir as a ransom.—From Asia Magazine.

Fine Wire.

Wire too fine to be seen by the unaided eye can be made from tungsten. A pierced diamond serves as a die to spin this cobweb metal which, in spite of its almost imperceptible fineness, is strong enough to bear up a pair of ordinary desk shears. Wire of this sort is used chiefly as fuse in delicate electrical experiments, where the least excess of current would destroy intricate and costly apparatus. Tungsten cannot be successfully bent and shaped cold; because of this peculiarity, the cone-shaped filaments for certain types of lamps are made by winding the tungsten wire around a slender steel mandrel, or core; this is fixed with heat, which dissolves away the steel, leaving the shaped filament as it appears in the finished lamp.

Tell This at Dinner.

Two dwellers in the suburbs, coming along the road one evening, stopped aglance. "What's the matter at Hobbs' house?" gasped one. "He's got every gas-jet in the place going." "I know," replied the other suddenly, "his wife is coming home tomorrow." "I don't see what that has got to do with this sudden illumination." "Oh, he wrote to her, saying he'd been spending his evenings quietly at home reading, and if she came back and found the gas bill about a quarter of what it should be in the circumstances, she would be very suspicious."

Be Fair To The Boys.

The usual spring argument about taking the boys out of school and putting them to work in the fields will soon begin in the farm home. The father is very busy. Plowing and planting must be done on time. It is hard to hire men that can be trusted with the machinery or the horses. Hired men mean more work in the kitchen for the mother and the daughters. The school may not be interesting. The boys are dependable, like to be out of doors, and are proud to take a man's place and help with the work. That is the easy, lazy way of looking at it and the boy gives up his spring school term and becomes a rural child laborer. If that occurs two or three years in succession he has lost his chance for an education.

The stronger, better way is to sacrifice something of present comfort and expediency for the child's future welfare. By his work this spring or next spring the boy may save to the family two or three dollars a day for a few weeks but he does it at a very great loss to himself and probably to his people. He is giving up the time that should be used to deepen, broaden, and refine his life. Besides that, if he does not get proper schooling and enough of it now, he will not be able to earn as much as he ought when he becomes a man. Then he, too, will feel that his children must give up their chances for an education and spend their childhood days at some kind of labor. So the circle goes on from father to son. Keep the boy in school. That may be the way to bring the entire family to a finer plane of life.

Health Talk.

The health talk of the Pennsylvania Department of Health is prepared this week by Doctor Mary Riggs Noble, Chief, Division of Child Health. Doctor Noble says:—

"About 230,000 babies are born in Pennsylvania every year. In 1892, 18,349 died, that is, 85 babies in every thousand born alive perished before they were a year old; most of them in the first month of life. In that same twelve months, 1,257 mothers died. One thousand two hundred and fifty-seven homes had the most necessary persons taken away from them. The burning need today is, that parents should realize that almost every death of a baby or a mother was unnecessary; and that some of the babies died because their mothers either died or were made ill at their birth. Only a small part of this infant and mother loss is beyond our present skill to avoid. We know the things that are life-saving.

Only well mothers can expect to have well babies, and for keeping the mother well, special care is needed—not complicated care, not expensive care, not care that is hard to understand, or to carry out, but the simple matters of seeing a doctor early and knowing the organs are healthy, getting advice as to eating, sleeping, bathing, dressing and exercising, etc.

The baby of a well mother is more likely to live and thrive. Mothers should be kept well, not only for their own sakes, but also for their baby's sake. Most of the deaths of the first month of life can be avoided by conscientious application of knowledge we already possess. Every parent that reads this should shoulder a fresh sense of responsibility.
